

New Residents at the Kisner Household

Last year, my family fostered 12 puppies and found each of them loving adoptive families. This week, we picked up four more. Their temporary names (picked by my kids) are Milo, Chandler, Miley, and Dixie. Three of them are siblings (some type of Rottweiler/Shepherd mix) and the fourth is a German Shepherd mix. The job of a foster parent is to provide a safe and loving environment until the puppies are ready to be adopted. Eight-week-old puppies are at such an impressionable stage so it's great that my three kids provide an endless supply of love and affection (at least for the puppies).

In addition to affection, we provide basic care such as food, water, and shelter. We also take the puppies to adoption events and vet appointments. Potential adopters can come to our house to meet the puppies. There is a bit of expense and lots of "cleaning up" involved, but the puppies are awfully cute, and the sheer joy on my kids' faces is priceless.
